State's Att'y Hoyne says he is going to clean up levee.

Coroner's inquest held yesterday. Fred Amort, morals squad, released on his own recognizance.

Evidence showed that Officer Stanley Birns was shot down while a crowd of levee characters were menacing the morals squad after raid.

According to the testimony, the morals squad fired when they saw Birns and his partner, John Sloop, rushing toward them and mistook them for part of the levee band.

Major Funkhouser believes the men were justified in shooting and Inspector Dannenberg says the men thought they were in danger of their lives.

Officer John Sloop, who was with Birns, said morals squad men fired at them without giving them a chance.

Gleason and Schuettler still insist that the officers fired too quickly.
